Wrath at Christ's Coming — The Seventh Trumpet

Arthur C. Brown

Wrath at Christ's Coming

"The great day" of "the wrath of the Lamb" so dreaded at the end of chapter 6 is now due, "that there should be no longer delay" (10:6 N.T.).

The Seventh Trumpet. Going back to chapter 11, vs. 15-18, the seventh trumpet presents the last woe as God's great wrath against His enemies, not only at Christ's coming (19:15,19), but also at the close of the thousand years (20:7-10), and then finally in the great-white-throne judgment of the wicked dead on whom His wrath will abide eternally (20:11-15 and John 3:36).

The Seventh Vial brings us to the end of Daniel's seventieth week, the end of the times of the Gentiles, the end of Gentile world dominion, the end of man's day. This last seventh vial has to do with the civil world empire. Verse 19 requires special consideration.
